About the Webinar

Excipient unknowns can derail drug development projects. What you don't know about an excipient might surprise you, and could impact the drug product. The rational incorporation of excipients using quality-by-design (QbD) can inject robustness into a product and help protect against potential failures. The Webinar will include a review of the IPEC QbD Guide on product development and life-cycle management. Discussion will cover: Impact of excipient variability on product performance 1. Critical material attributes 2. Excipient criticality during development and life-cycle management 3. Product and process drift 4. Special cause variation 5. Bridging the gap between reality and regulatory expectations

David R. Schoneker is the President/Owner of Black Diamond Regulatory Consulting, LLC. He was the Chairman of IPEC-Americas during the period 2007-2009 and is currently serving as the Vice Chair for Science and Regulatory Policy. Dave previously worked as the Director of Global Regulatory Affairs for Colorcon where he worked for over 42 years.

Prof Brian Carlin, Director QbD/Regulatory at DFE Pharma, is an internationally recognized expert on Special Cause Variation arising from the complexity of excipients and the products into which they are formulated.

Dr. Chris Moreton is an independent consultant/advisor in pharmaceutical formulation design and development, and excipients since 2007. Prior to becoming a consultant/advisor, he had over 30 years industrial experience mainly as a formulation scientist in the UK, Sweden, Canada and the US. He is a past Chair of IPEC-Americas.
